Botox:

A botulinum toxin injected in tiny amounts to reduce or eliminate frown lines, forehead creases, crow's feet and bands in the neck, Botox works by blocking nerve impulses, temporarily paralyzing the muscles that cause wrinkles while giving the skin a smoother appearance. The effects typically last three to six months or longer.

Brow lift:

A surgical procedure that minimises forehead creases, drooping eyebrows, hooding over eyes, furrowed in the forehead and frown lines by removing excess tissue, altering muscles and tightening the skin of the forehead. May be done with an incision across the top of the head just behind the hairline; or with the use of an endoscope, which requires three-to-five short incisions. Most often done on people over 40.

Chemical peel:

A chemical solution is applied to the face to peel away the outer layers of the skin, encouraging new skin to grow. Used for tightening the skin, reducing fine wrinkles, scars and blemishes and stimulating the growth of collagen and elastin.

Dermal filler:

Dermal fillers are injected into the skin to plump it up, decrease wrinkles and reduce the appearance of facial lines. There are many types of fillers on the market, including Restylane, which is based on hyaluronic acid, and others that have a collagen base. Results last upwards of three months, depending on the filler chosen.
