THE JURY'S OUT

Our panel of external judges tell us how they started off in the industry and what their beauty mottos are.

Marc Teng,
HAIR AND MAKEUP
ARTIST

"Fourteen years ago, I was looking in the papers for a job and responded to an opening at a hair salon. One thing led to another and here I am today. I have always appreciated beauty, and my field allows me to express my own creativity."

Dexter Ng,
CREATIVE DIRECTOR OF NEXT HAIR SALON

"I've always wanted to be in this industry as I find working with hair very interesting. My first job was working part-time in my uncle's hair salon. When it comes to hair, I prefer a more natural look that is not too fuzzy."

Cindy Goh,
MAKEUP ARTIST

"I started my career nine years ago by assisting another makeup artist and have not looked back since. When it comes to makeup, I prefer the 'less is more' school of thought."

Dr. Low Chai Ling,
MEDICAL DIRECTOR OF THE SLOANE CLINIC

"I started The Sloane Clinic in 2004 because of my love for beautifying faces. I want to empower women from all walks of life to rediscover their innate allure."

Dr. Patricia Wong,
MEDICAL AESTHETIC
DIRECTOR OF LING
AESTHETIC CLINIC

"I started practicing medicine as a general practitioner and met people who needed help with their skin. In the course of finding solutions and trying to achieve the best outcome for them, I began to invest more time in the field of aesthetics. I think that when it comes to skincare, prevention is better than cure."

Dr. Alvin Wong,
MEDICAL DIRECTOR OF
SKIN MEGAESTHETICS

"I believe in maintaining the skin in its natural state – that's what separates a great doctor from the rest."

Peter Khor,
CELEBRITY MAKEUP
ARTIST

"Although I've been in the line for over 15 years, I don't want to stop as I find myself loving my job more each year. When it comes to makeup, I prefer to put a personal twist to it instead of following trends. One should never be afraid to explore."

Edward Chung,
SALON DIRECTOR OF EVOLVE SALON

"I've always known I wanted a job related to fashion. As a hairstylist, I am able to help my customers look fashionable. Even after 10 years in the industry, it's still important to keep myself updated by constantly learning."

Dr. Low Chai Ling,
MEDICAL DIRECTOR OF THE SLOANE CLINIC

"I started The Sloane Clinic in 2004 because of my love for beautifying faces. I want to empower women from all walks of life to rediscover their innate allure."
